

2018 ECAC Governor Recommendations

The final step is to work as a table and use the information you heard during the presentations, read in the recommendation briefs, and the data from the ranking process to decide which recommendations should move forward as the Council's next Governor Recommendations for the 2018 report.

On the table is a set of sticky notes. Each set contains a sticky note with the name of each recommendation.

On the back side of this sheet there are six boxes. Use the sticky notes to put the recommendations in order with 1 being the recommendation your table thinks is best.

Once you have ordered the recommendations draw a line where you feel the cut-off should be for recommendations to move forward and be included in the 2018 report to the Governor. For example, if you think the top three should be included you would draw a line between box 3 and box 4. If you think all five should be included you would draw a line after box 5.
